iQera, the French leading player in debt acquisition and debt servicing amends its governance as part of the structuring of the new group, 18 months after the merger of MCS and DSO, to enter a new stage of development

In agreement with the group's shareholders, BC Partners and Montefiore Investment:

In this capacity, he chairs the Executive Committee and steers the operational strategy of the group and its subsidiaries and remains in charge of investments and allocation of capital.

- Jean-Fran ois Bensahel becomes Pr sident of Louvre Bidco, the group's holding company.

In this capacity, he will focus on strategic developments in France and Italy, innovation and building the group's culture.

2019 was a year during which iQera focused on structuring, combining sustained development, investment strategy, profound transformation of the organization and controlled management in the first full year after the merger.

This change in governance comes at a time when the Group is entering a new stage of development. The objective is to support its strategy for the coming years: to become the trusted partner of companies and financial institutions across the entire value chain of the customer financial cycle.
